Heleniums

we hold a National Collection of these excellent and bone hardy plants. Attractive to honeybees, they flower from late June to October and, if dead headed, some may do so continuously. Many can be seen in Holbrook garden during summer. Available either in 9cm pots & the balance as divisions (all are £3.00 unless stated). Divisions are only available during March. For plants purchased after midsummer, we recommend holding overwinter, outside in their pots Plant them out the following March/April as growth commences. Many naming errors in commerce and we strive to offer the true forms. See helenium.net for more info. We have pruned this list to remove varieties which, frankly, are not very good

Helenium Baronin Linden flower bud orange with yellow tips opens reflexed yellow-orange, almost flat prominent cone of green then light brown, reverse of petal strongly marked orange. Ex Wageningen Botanic Garden BG15715

Helenium Baudirektor Linne AGM orange red fades to attractive rust, big cone, medium-short

Roses

In the wet, mild west roses must be chosen with care. Those in our garden are never sprayed - if they get disease they are turfed out. We learn a lot by looking at diseased and healthy specimens in other gardens - far more useful than awards given to roses grown and sprayed in the dry east! How We Work

Our composts have been peat free since 1995. Our electricity - used for plant propagation and pumping water is from the greenest supplier. Only biological control of pests is used so no toxic chemicals on our plants or in our composts. Our plants are grown hard. They are not coddled, over-heated, forced or overpotted which means they stand a chance when planted in your garden!
